At Mount Rastus.

A dispatch from Baker City states that the county recorder, the first of the week, received for record 19 location notices from the Mount Rastus phonolite district.

Jim Cleary, a veteran miner and prospector, reiterates his statement that the camp is all right, and says that, regardless of the opinion of others, and the "knocking" that has been going on, he knows there are great values in the camp, and development work will justify his faith in it.

G. B. Moulton, who has just returned from the Mount Rastus district, brought in a large quantity of ore samples, a portion of which he sent to the Corvallis college for analysis. Mr. Moulton says that, like any other new camp, it will take a great deal of work there to develop it and show what is in the ground, but he is confident that gold values are there in paying quantities.—Ontario Argus.

Trusts Tackle Uncle Sam

Washington, Nov. 23.—A gigantic struggle between the cement forces of the West has found its way to Washington. It is believed that congress will be involved before long. The issue is whether the government shall be allowed to continue the erection of cement mills at the Tonto Dam in Arizona and sell cement to the farmers of the valley at less than $3 a barrel, or, by suspending that work, compel them to pay $4 a barrel.

The Tonto dam, when completed, will be 230 feet high, and will require more than 200,000 barrels of cement. If the present plan is carried out the cost will be $2,700,000. If the trust wins $1,000,000 more will be required. The hearing will be held before the secretary of the interior Tuesday. All the ingredient requisites for the manufacture of cement are there. The government has already $1000 of machinery on the ground. Thirteen hundred land owners have bonded themselves to reimburse the government in ten years for its expenditures. The trust's contention is that the government's manufacture of cement would be paternalism.

Oregon, Colorado, Utah, Montana and other irrigation states are intensely interested in the outcome of the matter.

Got a Bad Fall.

Alice Hatch, the little daughter of Mail Carrier George E. Hatch, fell out of the loft of a neighbor's barn Saturday evening, while playing, and sustained injuries from which she is now confined to her bed. The little girl, with others, was playing, when she stepped on a board that gave way, and she was thrown violently to the ground, 16 feet below. She went home, but soon became ill, and fell into a semi-unconscious condition, remaining thus until this morning, when she regained consciousness. Medical assistance was promptly secured, but thus far it has not been ascertained whether or not she suffered internal injuries.

A Generous Offer.

Joseph Meyers & Sons have a standing offer to give a sack of flour to any family that needs a little help at this time of the year for a Thanksgiving present. If you know a deserving family that would appreciate such a present leave word with the public-spirited head of the well-known White Corner firm.

Correction.

The advertisement of the Yokohama Tea Store of a 100-piece Haviland china set valued at $33.00 for $30.00 should have read for $20.00. This is a great reduction, which the ladies should look up.
